Summary:

To provide a summary of activities recently undertaken by the Chief Executive Officer.

Background:

Nil

General:

I advise Council of the following activities:-

- 13 January 2015 – Rating Workshop with particular emphasis on rating options to be considered for the 2015/2016 financial year. Also the collection of rate from properties which have dual occupancies.

- 13 January 2015 – Subdivision Workshop to explain the role council plays in the planning / approval process. The Planning Act, NT Planning Scheme and other relevant legislation were also covered to give Elected Members a better understanding of the planning framework.

- 23 January 2015 – Along with representatives from Elton Consulting, the Director Technical Services and the Strategic Planner, I attended a workshop with staff from Development Assessment Services and the Department of Lands and Planning to review the Palmerston City Centre Master Plan.

- 30 January 2015 – Zuccoli Stage 1 Stormwater Management – The Mayor, Technical Services staff and I met with Urbex / Land Development Corporation and other key stakeholders to discuss stormwater management options throughout the balance of the Stage 1 Zuccoli Development. It was agreed that future meetings would take place between the developers and Council staff to further investigate acceptable options.
31 January 2015 – A bus tour was arranged for Elected Members and senior staff to visit a number of locations throughout the Municipality. This proved to be most beneficial and assisted both staff and Elected Members to gain a better understanding of key issues and potential future projects.

3 February 2015 – The City of Palmerston hosted a meeting of TOPROC (Top End Regional Organisation of Councils) with some of the issues raised including:-

- The balance of the TOPROC Special Purpose Grant will need to be returned to the Department of Local Government;
- Discussion on the LGANT 2015/2016 Budget Submission;

9 February 2015 – Meeting with the Acting Chief Executive, Department of Lands and Planning and other departmental staff to discuss legal advice regarding Zuccoli subdivisions – this was reported to the Council Meeting held on 17 February 2015.

11 February 2015 – I participated in the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet Stakeholder Roundtable to discuss the Reform of the Federation White Paper.

17 February 2015 – Zuccoli Stage 1 Stormwater Management – This follow-up meeting was held with the key stakeholders to further consider future stormwater treatment options. The preference is for a system of lakes within the development, however the provision of an underground water supply to maintain the lakes during the dry season requires considerable further investigation.

18 February 2015 – JKC Update on Ichthys / Inpex Project – This meeting updated Senior Management on the works carried out to date and future works proposed. This dry season will see a considerable increase in the onsite workforce with additional accommodation being secured at the adjacent Immigration Detention Facility.

19 February 2015 – Australia Day NT Council – The Acting Mayor and I attended this thank you reception where the City of Palmerston was presented with a Certificate for our ongoing support of Australia Day events and celebrations.

20 February 2015 – I met with Mr John Burdekin (National Director Retail for Jones Lang LaSalle) and gave a presentation on the growth of Palmerston, including major projects.

Mr Damien Ryan
President
Local Government Association of the Northern Territory
PO Box 2017
PARAP NT 0804

Dear Mr Ryan

Digital television and retransmission in remote Northern Territory

Thank you for your letter to the Hon Malcolm Turnbull MP, the Minister for Communications, concerning digital television reception and retransmission in remote areas of the Northern Territory. The Minister has asked me to reply on his behalf. Please accept my apologies for the delay in responding.

The Australian Government’s aim in the transition to digital television has been to deliver the full suite of free to air television channels to all parts of the country through reliable, consistent and future proof infrastructure arrangements.

In moving to digital television, the government decided that the optimal solution for people who live in remote locations, and for those who could not receive a quality terrestrial signal in regional and metropolitan areas, was to move to the new government-funded Viewer Access Satellite Television (VAST) service. Not only would this provide quality reception of all free to air channels and relevant State or Territory news broadcasts, it would also save on the costs of maintaining and upgrading self-help television transmission towers which are usually paid for through council rates.

In designing the roll out of VAST into remote areas, all equipment for installation under the (now closed) Satellite Subsidy Scheme (SSS) was chosen because it met the highest standards and had proven capability to withstand cyclonic conditions, heat and other weather extremes. The equipment is to a similar or higher industry standard as existing pay television satellite equipment which has proven to be suitable in remote areas that are subject to extreme weather conditions.

Equipment installed under the SSS, or the (now also closed) Household Assistance Scheme came with a 12 month after care service warranty for equipment and installation services. If the equipment is faulty within this timeframe, the service contractor who undertook the original installation is contractually obliged to repair or replace the faulty equipment in accordance with standard warranty conditions. Once the 12 month warranty period has expired, it is a matter for the householder to maintain their reception equipment.
Television retransmission

If a council or community decide to convert a former self-help tower, they may be able to do so subject to the Australian Communications and Media Authority’s (ACMA’s) planning guidelines. However Commonwealth funding assistance is not available and any such conversions would be at the council’s or community’s cost.

The ACMA is the independent regulator responsible for authorising self-help retransmission services by making a spectrum determination under section 34 of the Broadcasting Services Act 1992 (BSA) and then issuing apparatus licences to authorise the transmitters under section 100 of the Radiocommunications Act 1992. The apparatus licences issued by the ACMA authorise the use of the spectrum for the provision of retransmission services within the conditions imposed by the licence.

The act of issuing an apparatus licence does not guarantee access to other elements necessary to provide a retransmission service (for example, access to the site, tower, power or program content). To access program content for retransmission services in central and eastern Australia sourced from the VAST satellite feed, self-help providers will need to seek authorisation from Eastern Australia Satellite Broadcasters (EASB). EASB can be contacted at easb.admin@sca.com.au.

In deciding whether to make spectrum available to a self-help retransmission applicant under section 34 of the BSA, the ACMA will have regard to matters, including:

- whether the spectrum will be used to ensure that all available commercial and national digital services in the relevant licence area are available to viewers in the area intended to be served by the applicant;
- whether use of the spectrum will comply with certain technical specifications, including whether:
  - services will be transmitted using MPEG-2 compression standard at the DVB-T standard
  - services will be provided in the same definition (for example, high definition or standard definition) as the source service
  - service information is properly constructed with the objective that the transmitted services should have the same ‘look and feel’ as broadcaster-provided services; this should include provision of EPGs, program classification information; captioning; Now/Next, logical channel numbering, and time and date table and time offset table
  - any other matter the ACMA considers relevant.

Following the making of a determination under section 34 of the BSA, the ACMA may issue one or more transmitter licences to an applicant. In addition to the general conditions applying to apparatus licences, specific conditions may be imposed requiring compliance with the above technical specifications.
The ACMA also requires self-help providers to acknowledge a significant area of potential risk that relates to the use of professional decoders to receive VAST to feed terrestrial transmission sites. These decoders may not automatically respond to changes made to the satellite platform that affect VAST. Consequently, any such changes could have a significant impact on the retransmission services, in terms of both time and cost for the self-help provider. The ACMA will also expect self-help providers to acknowledge that they understand this risk and that they may be required to respond to changes made to the VAST satellite platform at their own expense.

For your information, the ACMA has already licensed five self-help providers to serve Northern Territory communities: Ayers Rock Resort (Yulara); Batchelor Institute of Indigenous Education (Batchelor); ConocoPhillips (Bayu-Undan); and Nhulunbuy Corporation Limited (Nhulunbuy). Of these, only the Ayers Rock Resort and ConocoPhillips retransmit the services of all five of the free-to-air broadcasters.

The ACMA can be contacted on 02 9334 7704 or by emailing Tony.George@acma.gov.au.

VAST access

If a Council uses VAST to feed its transmission site, and some viewers in that local area are currently receiving VAST services using direct-to-home (DTH) reception equipment (a satellite dish and a set-top box activated for VAST services), there will be no need for them to swap to terrestrially-delivered VAST services. Viewers with VAST enabled DTH equipment can continue to receive the satellite-delivered VAST services, if they so choose, even if a self-help facility is established locally.

MPEG-4

In your letter you refer to “technology having changed such that it exceeds current Australian broadcast standards and can deliver high definition and 3D pictures” which seems to be a reference to the MPEG-4 compression standard, although the MPEG-2 compression standard currently supports the delivery of high definition services such as ABCNews24, 7mate, GEM and ONE.

All terrestrial television broadcasters and self-help providers are currently expected to transmit services using the MPEG-2 compression standard. These arrangements were put in place prior to digital switchover in Australia when most domestic reception equipment was not expected to be MPEG-4 compliant. However, the receiver manufacturing industry has more recently estimated that approximately 80 per cent of the main digital television receivers in Australian households are capable of receiving MPEG-4.

The Government is aware of the benefits offered by MPEG-4 broadcasting for more efficient use of spectrum. In his speech in September 2014 to the ACMA’s Radcomms conference, the Minister for Communications announced that the Government will encourage commercial and national television broadcasters to commence the transition to MPEG-4-only broadcasting, with the aim that every service would move to this format in the future. A proposal for this transition is set out in a Government discussion paper on Digital Television Regulation released in January this year. The paper is available on the Department’s website and submissions are sought by 31 March 2015.
As part of this move to MPEG-4 broadcasting, the Minister will be writing to the ACMA requesting that it reconsider the continuing relevance of the licence condition preventing self-help providers from transmitting services with this compression standard. Should the ACMA decide to lift the restriction, it would then be open to Councils in the LGANT to seek authorisation from the ACMA to retransmit VAST services in MPEG-4.

If the restriction is removed and Councils decide to provide self-help services in MPEG-4, they should be aware that notwithstanding the estimated high penetration rates some digital television and set-top boxes in their local area may not be able to receive services using this compression standard. This may be particularly the case with secondary receivers which are usually located in places such as bedrooms. Given this situation, Councils may wish to advise viewers in advance of any new services being established that in order to receive them they will require receivers that are MPEG-4 compliant. Viewers with older digital televisions or set-top boxes may need to purchase new receivers if they want to access the self-help services.

Costings

It is unclear whether the cost estimate in your letter of $50,000 per site to retransmit digital television services using MPEG-4 was provided by a qualified installer and, if so, that it would result in arrangements that meet the technical specifications required by the ACMA. If this is not the case, you may wish to advise Councils to contact a qualified installer to discuss retransmission equipment and the installation options available to them. Before agreeing on a cost, it would be important to be sure that the option selected will provide viewers with the full functionality of the VAST services, including the regional news services for the Northern Territory.

I also note your letter indicated that, if MPEG-4 was not used, the cost estimate would double due to the need to pay for converters. This assumption should be checked with a qualified installer as some form of conversion may still be required to terrestrially retransmit in MPEG-4 and DVB-T content sourced from a satellite which uses MPEG-4 and DVB-S.

Thank you for bringing your concerns to the Minister’s attention. I trust this information will be of assistance.

Yours sincerely
